Get Involved

"Tell me and I'll forget; show me and I may remember; involve me and I'll understand."

- Chinese Proverb

It's hard to believe it's been six months since beginning my tenure at the Iowa Alcoholic Beverages Division. I've learned so much and made many changes. I am most excited about moving on from the planning stage to rolling up my sleeves and taking action on many opportunities, especially in the areas of education and outreach.

The Division has a new focus on education and I am pleased to announce that Shannon Hagge will be leading this new program as the Education and Outreach Coordinator. Shannon has been working hard to gather potential topics, programs and partnerships.

I. A Three-Pronged Approach.

We have split our educational efforts into three segments. First, alcohol awareness and prevention, which is aimed at the general public. Topics in this area could include underage drinking, binge drinking, caffeinated alcoholic beverages, fetal alcohol syndrome or alcoholism and substance dependency.

The next component of education is directed to our licensees and the alcohol industry. Our goal at the Division is to achieve compliance with all laws and regulations through education rather than enforcement and sanctions. In essence, I want to be proactive, rather than reactive. The third element involves partnerships and is actually where we are getting started first.

II. Partnerships.

We have already begun two important partnerships. The first is EUDL - Enforcement of Underage Drinking Laws - which we are working on with the Iowa Department of Human Rights, Iowa State Patrol, Department of Public Safety, Governor's Traffic Safety Bureau and the Governor's Office of Drug Enforcement. EUDL will be working together to provide many online resources including an alcohol e-policy generator. That program will allow licensees to input their own information and print out applicable laws, rules and policies to post or distribute to employees.

Most recently, the Division has partnered with the March of Dimes to increase awareness of the dangers of consuming alcohol while pregnant. In this issue of the Quarterly, you'll find a poster that outlines the risks and provides a number of resources for women with questions or concerns. The state of Texas has made posting this information in on-premises licensed establishments mandatory. As I said before, I am interested in developing a relationship with you that promotes voluntary compliance, so we are not mandating, but asking. Please tear the poster out and place it in your establishment. The women's restroom or your point of sale would be a great place to hang it. The poster is also available at IowaABD.com so you can print additional copies as needed. I thank you in advance for your cooperation.

III. Resources.

Along with the March of Dimes poster, many other resources will be added to our website including print materials, programs, suggested speakers for certain topics and more.

If you have any materials you'd like to share, please contact Shannon Hagge at Hagge@IowaABD.com

IV. Conclusion.

We have made a lot of progress in only six months, but are still seeking your involvement and support. I ask for your assistance and feedback on how the Division should move forward as well as any suggestions or ideas you have regarding education and outreach.

Cheers!

Stephen Larson
Administrator

FAVORITE ASPECT OF THE DIVISION

Lon enjoys getting to help people every day in the course of his job duties, as well as the variety.

FAVORITE PASTIMES

Lon loves to take weekend trips with his wife to go antique shopping. He is also a big Iowa Hawkeye football fan.

RELIEF DRIVER

What are your job duties?

As the relief driver, I don't have set everyday duties. My primary job is to cover wherever I'm needed. I take routes when other drivers are on vacation or out sick. I help with training when we bring new transportation drivers on staff. I also cover positions in the warehouse including receiving, loading and operating the forklift to bring back stock into the slots. I'm very versatile and can switch jobs and tasks quickly.

What is your favorite part of your job?

I really enjoy helping people, which is why relief driver is the perfect position for me. I get to help coworkers and management, but also customers when I'm out on the road. It's fun to meet new people all the time. There are some very nice people out there, especially in the small towns.

What is the most challenging part of your job?

At first the hardest part was learning all the routes. We have around 40 routes that I need to be familiar with because I don't know from day to day which one I'll be driving. I have those all down now, so the weather and road conditions are the main challenge. I take pride in being dependable and always delivering the product regardless of the weather, road conditions or other obstacles. My schedule is also very irregular; I typically don't know what I'll be doing from one week to the next.

What do you like to do in your free time?

I enjoy going antiquing with my wife, Cheryl. She's great about planning weekend getaways and I love shopping and staying at local B&Bs together with her. We've bought and refurbished a lot of furniture over the years and have a collection of unique, vintage coat trees. I have four grandchildren under the age of three, so spending time with them when I can is great. The kids and grandkids come over for Sunday dinner a couple times a month. Cheryl and I like cooking and we work well together in the kitchen. I make a big Thanksgiving dinner with turkey, homemade dressing, pies and all the fixings. The challenge of getting everything done at the same time is interesting.

World randies

BY MICHAEL SHERER

There are essentially three types of brandy.

Brandy made with fermented juice of crushed grapes is the most common. Distilled once or twice, the resulting spirit is mellowed and aged in wood casks, usually oak.

Brandy made with pressed grapes, skins, and stems after the grapes are crushed is called pomace. Usually bottled without being aged or even seeing the inside of a wood cask, these brandies are edgier and more raw than their refined siblings. Best examples of the style are Italian grappas and French marcs. Lately, a South American brandy from Chile similar in style to pomace called “pisco” has become more popular here.

Spain produces a unique style of brandy using the “solera” system used to make sher-ries . . . a series of butts is racked together.

Brandy is drawn off from the oldest butt in the series, but never more than a third.

That’s replaced with brandy from the next butt in the series, and so on, with the most recently distilled brandy going into the first, or youngest, butt in the series. Solera systems hasten maturation by combining vintages, with many as large as 30 stages. Cardenal Mendoza is a good example of the style.

Many countries have a thriving brandy industry producing internationally known brands—Presidente from Mexico and Metaxa from Greece, not to mention the lighter “California-style” brandies such as E&J, Paul Masson, Korbel, and Christian Bros. from the United States.

Finally, fruit brandies (not fruit-flavored brandies) are distilled from a variety of other fruits. Well-known examples include calvados (apple brandy from Normandy) and Williamine (pear brandy from Switzerland).

ENJOYING BRANDY

To fully enjoy the unique richness of brandy, pour it into a snifter, hold the glass between two fingers in your upturned palm, and swirl it gently to allow the warmth of your hand to gradually warm the beverage and release the bouquet.

Brandy also lends its rich bouquet and taste to a wide variety of mixed drinks, which increases this classic beverage’s versatility.

Brandy Cocktail

Serve in a chilled cocktail glass.

1-1½ ounces brandy, fruit brandy, or flavored brandy

1-1½ ounces triple sec or other orange-flavored liqueur

1 lime

Pour the brandy and triple sec into a shaker half-filled with fresh ice. Cut the lime into wedges; reserve one wedge for garnish, and squeeze the juice from the remaining wedges into the shaker. Shake vigorously, and strain the mixed drink into the serving glass; garnish with the reserved lime wedge.

Brandy-Champagne Cooler

Serve in a chilled wine glass.

1½ ounces brandy, fruit brandy, or flavored brandy
1 ounce Cointreau or other orange liqueur
Champagne, chilled

Pour the brandy and Cointreau into the serving glass. Add the champagne; do not stir—the bubbles in the champagne will mix the ingredients.

Brandy Milk Punch

Serve in a chilled collins glass.

1 cup milk
2 ounces brandy, fruit brandy, or flavored brandy
1 teaspoon confectioners' sugar or sugar syrup
Nutmeg

Combine the milk, brandy, and sugar in a shaker half-filled with fresh ice. Shake vigorously, and strain the mixed drink into the serving glass. Sprinkle nutmeg on top.

Brandy Alexander

Serve in a chilled cocktail glass.

1½ ounces brandy, fruit brandy, or flavored brandy
½ ounce dark crème de cacao
1 ounce heavy cream or ice cream

Combine the brandy, crème de cacao, and cream in a shaker half-filled with fresh ice; shake vigorously, and strain the mixed drink into the serving glass.

Brandy and Soda

Serve in a chilled old-fashioned glass.

1½-2 ounces brandy, fruit brandy, or flavored brandy
5-6 ounces club soda, chilled

Place fresh ice in the serving glass. Pour the brandy over the ice, and add the soda; do not stir—the bubbles in the soda will mix the ingredients.

Stinger

Serve in a chilled cocktail glass.

1½-2 ounces brandy, fruit brandy, or flavored brandy
1½ ounces white crème de menthe

Combine the brandy and crème de menthe in a shaker half-filled with fresh ice. Shake vigorously, and strain the mixed drink into the serving glass.

The wide and varied cordials and liqueurs category continues to push the boundaries with new flavors, new products and line extensions, and new usages in numerous cocktails.

Luscious Elixirs

BY ROBERT PLOTKIN

Note: This excerpt is printed with permission from the March/April 2010 issue of StateWays—the Beverage Alcohol Merchandising Magazine for Control States.

With so much attention being lavished these days on the surging popularity of cocktails and premium spirits, it's easy to understand why liqueurs and cordials are frequently relegated as passé and out of step with contemporary tastes. They're not glitzy and rarely—if ever—get coverage in the media. After all, who sips crème de menthe frappés anymore?

And while we must temper any of our observations with the understanding of the recent and ongoing difficulties in the economy, the fact is that any bartender worth his or her salt will attest that the cocktail's phenomenal renaissance is due in large part to the overlooked contributions of liqueurs and cordials. Their brilliant flavors and lush, satiny bodies temper the enthusiasm of highoctane spirits and provide the heart of most notable cocktails. Without a varied complement of liqueurs on the back bar, drink-making abilities behind America's bars drop into low gear.

The adage that what people buy on Saturday is what they drink Friday night suggests a clear path how to increase retail liqueur sales. Consumers have taken to cocktails in a big way. Re-creating their favorite concoctions at home for friends requires them venturing into your store for the ingredients—a few of which will assuredly be liqueurs.

CREATE YOUR OWN NEW FAVORITES

Take advantage of the luscious taste of liqueurs to create your own new favorite beverages and desserts. Add chocolate, mint, nut, or vanilla-flavored liqueurs to make coffee extra smooth and creamy. For a simple yet elegant dessert, pour one or more liqueurs over shaved ice or ice cream.

Also be sure to update your mixed drinks with some of liqueur's new light, aromatic flavors—from cranberry, blueberry, and passion fruit to gingerbread, pumpkin spice, and parfait amor. Here are some basic cocktail recipes to get you started.

Owner Jacky Rosic and owner/artist Paco Rosic say they are living the American dream. Originally from Bosnia, they also lived in Germany before coming to the US.

In addition to the Sistine Chapel replica, Paco Rosic's artwork adorns Catacombs, the bar in the basement of Galleria de Paco.

Galleria de Paco

Story & Photos by Tonya Dusold

Photos don't do the Galleria de Paco justice and two pages are not enough to tell you their whole story. You really need to go to the Galleria de Paco in Waterloo, Iowa, to see it for yourself. My own trip there was delayed almost a year, but I'm counting the days until I return.

The Details

Paco Rosic decided when he was a child that someday he was going to recreate Michelangelo's famous fresco work in the Sistine Chapel and he's done just that in his family's restaurant. Originally,

Paco spent almost five months and used over two thousand cans of spray paint to do the 2,500 square foot ceiling. Lying on his back on scaffolding, 14 feet up, he dealt with debilitating back pain plus severe hand and finger cramps.

The ceiling of the restaurant is mostly comprised of the nine Genesis scenes that are the central portion of the Chapel's ceiling. The most famous of which shows God creating Adam with their hands outstretched, nearly touching.

Since Galleria de Paco opened, Paco has extended the ceiling scenes down the walls, depicting prophets and other key figures of the Bible. The ceiling and walls together create an all encompassing, immersing experience.

Paco's version has less detail due to the smaller scale and spray paint medium, but is more brightly colored. His ability to create the broad picture with spray paint is impressive, but his talent is really evident upon close scrutiny. I guarantee you'll never get to inspect Michelangelo's work this close.

The Food

With the art and atmosphere being such a focus, you might be concerned that the food and beverage would be an afterthought, which is not the case. Gordana, Paco's mother, comes from a family of restaurateurs, some of which also live in Waterloo. Gordana worked with Paco Rosic's portrait with a can of spray paint hangs in Catacombs. Paco used over 2,000 cans of paint to do the ceiling, and has since used many more cans to add scenes to the walls of the restaurant.

Perhaps the most famous scene in Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel, Paco's version of God reaching for Adam is less detailed, more brightly colored but just as striking as the original. Although Michelangelo's ceiling took years, Paco finished his in only four and a half months.

Paco to create the menu and does much of the baking and dessert making.

Beneath the main restaurant is a lounge style bar, appropriately named Catacombs. Paco enjoys getting behind the bar and mixing drinks himself. It's another venue to express his creativity.

The Story

Galleria de Paco and Paco Rosic have received tons of press coverage the past four years, beginning before they even opened the doors. Paco is a gifted and skilled artist and his work is what piqued interest and generated the news reports. Paco's passion and dedication to this project make for a compelling story, but the press seems to have missed one key element, without which, I truly believe Galleria de Paco would not have been as successful: Paco's family, specifically his father, Jacky.

After meeting Jacky, it is clear where Paco's drive and passion come from. Jacky's love for life, his family and this restaurant are contagious. My face hurt from smiling so much after sitting with him for a couple of hours.

Jacky and his family have faced trials and adversity that most of us wouldn't wish on our enemies. After losing over half his family to violence, he took his family and fled war torn Bosnia to Germany in the early 1990s. They immigrated to America seven years later and none of them spoke English.

In less than a decade, they were United States citizens and living the American dream. Jacky is as enthusiastic about the U.S. as he is everything else. "I love America. I have traveled a lot and this country is really something special," he told me.

Instead of being wary of the world that has dealt him more than his share of hardships, Jacky has used his life experiences for good. He radiates positive energy and enthusiasm. He'll drop everything, or even get out of bed late at night, to give visitors a tour. The day I was there, the restaurant was closed, but when people peeked in the window, Jacky jumped up and invited them in to look around.

People come from around the world to have a one-of-a-kind experience at Galleria de Paco. They have filled twenty guest books in a few short years. I saw signatures of people from Australia, Egypt and Russia, all gushing compliments in many languages.

The art, the food and the family behind Galleria de Paco are all too big and wonderful to be contained in these two pages. Paco's artwork is the reason to make the drive to Waterloo, but Jacky's enthusiasm and spirit are what will make the restaurant succeed in the long run. It is a sight to behold and you truly should see it for yourself.

Think Before You DRINK

- Drinking any type of alcohol while pregnant can hurt your baby's brain, heart, kidneys and other organs and cause birth defects.
- The safest choice is not to drink at all when you are pregnant or trying to become pregnant.

Cheese, Fruit, and Port Simple, Elegant, and Delicious!

Help your customers discover—or rediscover—the delicious taste of port by pairing it with cheese and fruit. Once considered a gentleman's libation to be sipped from a snifter while smoking a cigar, port is gaining popularity as an elegant wine for everyone to enjoy anytime—before, during, and after meals!

Most people think of port as a ruby-colored, tawny, vintage fortified red wine—but port also comes in white. Lighter in both color and taste than the more familiar red varieties, white port is made from a blend of white grapes, sometimes with a little red grape juice added.

Like its red-colored cousins, white ports range from very sweet to very dry. You can serve white port as an aperitif, in wine-based mixed drinks, and with entrees featuring fish or ham.

Served in wine glasses, both red and white port complement simple desserts of sliced cheese (traditionally cheddar and Stilton, but experiment with other varieties), dried and fresh fruit, nuts, and chocolate (especially rich, dark chocolate).

Infusing spirits has been around for a long time, but we have recently seen a resurgence of this technique's popularity. On the surface, making strawberry peach tequila or coffee bean vodka to serve in your establishment seems to be a good way to capitalize on the trend. However, the process and timing make the practice illegal in most cases. There are three factors in infusing that conflict with Iowa law.

"A person or club holding a liquor control license... shall not... keep on premises... any alcoholic liquor in any container except the original package purchased from the division, except mixed drinks or cocktails mixed on the premises for immediate consumption [or] reuse... any container or receptacle used originally for packaging alcoholic liquor or wine; or adulterate, by the addition of any substance, the contents or remaining contents of an original package of an alcoholic liquor or wine..."

- Iowa Code §123.49(2)(d)(e)

I. ORIGINAL PACKAGING.

The process of infusing includes adding cut or mashed fruit, vegetables, herbs or other ingredients to a liquid in order to absorb flavors into the beverage. The additives do not typically fit down the neck of a standard liquor bottle, so the alcohol and infusing ingredients are usually placed in a large mouthed jar or container. Therein lies the first problem with licensees infusing their own alcohol. Iowa law mandates that spirits be kept in the original containers in which they were purchased from the Division.

The only exception to this is for mixed drinks or cocktails made for immediate consumption. The process of infusing alcohol typically takes three days to a week or more, therefore does not meet the immediate consumption stipulation.

II. ADULTERATED CONTENTS.

If the infused liquor cannot be stored overnight in different packaging, it would stand to reason that the infusing ingredients could be added directly to the bottle of spirits. Disregarding the logistical difficulty of dicing the fruit into tiny pieces to fit down the neck of a bottle, Iowa law prohibits adulterating the contents of a bottle of liquor with the addition of any substance. The law is intended to protect consumers from contamination or unforeseen health risks.

III. REUSING BOTTLES.

You cannot store alcohol in any other container than the manufacturer's package or add infusing ingredients to the original bottle. To get around these restrictions, some licensees have infused spirits for only a single day, then returned the now flavored alcohol back to the original bottle for later sale. This is also against the law because statute prohibits the reuse of packaging for alcoholic liquor or wine. Removing the contents, then pouring them back into the bottle constitutes reuse.

IV. SANCTIONS

Sanctions for breaking these laws can include fines, suspensions and revocation. If criminally convicted of storing spirits in containers other than the original packaging or reusing bottles, Iowa code mandates automatic revocation.

V. CONCLUSION.

The only legal way to infuse alcohol on licensed premises for sale is to infuse and sell the spirits on the same day. This process works for drinks such as sangria and margaritas, but not for many infused concoctions.

In order to keep up with the demand for infused spirits, the Division recommends licensees purchase liquor that has been infused by the manufacturer. We currently carry a number of products infused with fruits such as pineapple and passion fruit as well as citrus and ginger. Some Scotch BASICS

BLENDED WHISKY'S POPULARITY IS BASED ON THE
MORE ACCESSIBLE
FLAVOR PROFILE
AND LOWER COST.

Note: This excerpt is printed with permission from the January/February 2010 issue of StateWays—the Beverage Alcohol Merchandising Magazine for Control States.

Most Scotch whisky around the world is consumed in blended whisky, a combination of as many as 50 single malts and grain whiskies brought to create a particular style. Ingredients can change depending on supply and demand, but in most cases, the malts that make up the core of the blends—Aberfeldy in Dewar's, Talisker in Johnnie Walker Black—remain the same.

It wasn't until the 1850s that Scotch distillers first blended malt whiskies together with grain whiskies, discovering a market for the lighter combination among English consumers. Blended Scotch whisky is considered more accessible and mass-market today, still is produced in enormous volume, and represents brands that are known worldwide. Blended whisky's popularity is based on the more accessible flavor profile and lower cost.

The single malts that make up the flavor heart of blended Scotch come from five defined regions in Scotland.

The Highlands, the largest Scotch-producing region in Scotland, produces some of the biggest names in single malt including Glenfiddich, The Glenlivet, and The Macallan.

Islay, an island off Scotland's west coast, produces the most assertive, briny, smoky, pungent Scotch whiskies including Ardbeg.

Lowland whiskies come from an area in the southern part of Scotland and tend to be light and mellow.

Campbeltown, a remote town on the western fringe of Scotland, produces robust, tangy whiskies.

The islands—Arran, Jura, Mull, Orkney, and Skye—produce Highlands Scotches.

ENJOY SCOTCH NEAT, ON THE ROCKS, AND MIXED

You can enjoy the rich, full-bodied taste of scotch neat (straight up with no ice), on the rocks (poured over clean, fresh ice), and in mixed drinks including the following recipes.

Scotch Royale

Serve in a chilled champagne flute.

1 sugar cube

1-1½ ounces scotch

Dash bitters

Champagne or sparkling wine, chilled

Place the sugar cube in a chilled champagne flute. Add the scotch and bitters, and then fill the glass with chilled champagne or sparkling wine.

Scotch Cooler

Serve in a chilled collins glass.

2-3 ounces scotch

3-4 dashes white crème de menthe

Club soda, chilled

Place clean, fresh ice into the chilled serving glass, and add the scotch and crème de menthe. Fill the glass with chilled club soda; swirl gently to mix.

Scotch Old-Fashioned

Serve in an old-fashioned glass.

1 sugar cube

1-1½ teaspoons water

Dash of bitters

2-2½ ounces scotch

Orange slice

Lemon slice

Maraschino cherry

Place the sugar cube in the bottom of an old-fashioned glass; add the water and bitters, and muddle (crush) to mix well. Add the scotch, and stir; add fresh ice, and stir gently. Garnish with the orange and lemon slices and the cherry.
